HAND-BOOKS

TO

Wall Maps of Political Geography.

By KEITH JOHNSTON, LL.D.

UNIFORM IN SIZE WITH THE AUTHOR'S SMALL ATLASES.

This series of Maps is the only one that possesses the advantage of having a special Hand-Book for each Map.

THE advantage of teaching Geography by constant reference to large Wall Maps is now fully appreciated and practised in the higher class of schools throughout the country. In learning by rote from books alone, the eye,—that important auxiliary in the acquisition of all knowledge depending on form—is virtually ignored, and progress in learning is slow and unsatisfactory.

In these Text Books the names selected, and their orthography, are in perfect accordance with those on the Maps. Every place noticed has something peculiar, either in position, population, commerce, productions, or history, to render it memorable.

Intelligent teachers will here find suggestions which may enable them to lay before their pupils comparative views of great interest, regarding different countries and states.

Teaching Lists, carefully prepared by an Inspector of Schools of great experience, accompany each of the Hand-Books. These afford a ready means of testing the attainments of pupils in Map Geography, for acquiring a knowledge of which they offer the easiest method. Every name given in these Lists is to be found in the Wall Maps to which they refer.

Many practical advantages will be found in this method of limiting the attention of the learner to one Map, and its Explanatory Text Book, at one time. The distraction consequent on promiscuous book teaching is thus avoided; while, for a few pence, the pupil is supplied with lessons for a great part of the session, and is not under the necessity of carrying to school a bulky volume, of which a small part only can be required.

The Teaching Lists and Explanatory Text are further adapted to be used with UNLETTERED WALL MAPS, a series of which, exhibiting the physical features of each country, with the positions of the principal towns, but omitting the names, has been prepared for the use of Tutors or School Examiners. These are employed either for testing the knowledge of a class by pointing to the un-named Map on the Wall, or for filling in the names as an exercise for more advanced pupils.

A Hand-Book is given free with every Wall Map to which it refers. Extra copies are supplied at the following rates—

Extracts from Reviews

OF THE

ATLAS OF BRITISH HISTORY,

UNIFORM WITH THE 'POLITICAL ATLAS' AND THE 'PHYSICAL ATLAS.'

Containing 31 Maps (as on preceding page) Full Bound
Cloth, and an Index to every name in the Atlas.

'The necessity of maps to illustrate history is universally admitted, yet historical atlases are rare in this country. This renders the present one, containing 31 beautifully executed maps, all the more welcome, when we consider the moderate cost.'—The Athenæum.

'Here we may once more admit that a deficiency has been supplied. Cheap general atlases are now-a-days plentiful enough, but beyond this one we know of none at a reasonable price upon which a pupil could depend for real assistance in the study of history. No name likely to be met with in ordinary school histories is omitted, and the whole is executed in Messrs. Johnstons' well-known style.'—The Standard.

'There can be no doubt that a lamentable negligence has been shown in teaching this branch of knowledge (Historical Geography), but perhaps this may be partly accounted for by the want of a suitable means of imparting such instruction. But such an excuse as this will no longer be valid, for Mr. Keith Johnston's Atlas has been specially designed for supplying this want. To criticise its construction would be superfluous, inasmuch as Mr. Johnston's name is a guarantee for accuracy and excellence.'—The Civil Service Gazette.

'This atlas contains 31 excellent maps and a copious index, and will be found a valuable aid to the student of English History. We heartily recommend it to all teachers.'—The Quarterly Journal of Education.

'It would be difficult to overpraise this work, whether as a book of reference or as an assistant in the study of history. Nothing more useful of a geographical or historical character for school and study purposes can be well imagined.'—The Scotsman.

'The several changes which at certain convulsive periods like our own have occurred, were never so clearly and simply shown as in the Historical Atlas before us. In it we have a connected line of maps which illustrate, in such a manner as to be understood by schoolboys, the leading events of history. Although specially designed to elucidate British History—and for this purpose it is chiefly valuable—it also serves for a course of modern European history, "in sufficient detail for all ordinary purposes." The price of the atlas—less than one penny for each map—will surely make the book have a great circulation—as it deserves.'—The Bookseller.

PHYSICAL CHART OF THE WORLD.

By KEITH JOHNSTON, F.R.G.S.

Size, 4 feet 2 inches by 3 feet 6 inches. Price, on Roller, Varnished, £1, 1s.

The main object of this chart is to give a clear view of the general nature of the land surface of the globe; to distinguish those belts which are mainly characterized by forest or desert, pasture land or barren tundra, and to show the extent of the icy cape of the polar regions. For each of the landscape zones a colouring has been chosen which may be considered as representative of its general aspect; thus, the equatorial regions of luxuriant tropical forest vegetation are shown in a bright green; the deserts of both hemispheres, in a hot sienna tint; the forest lands of the temperate regions, in a dark sombre green; and the mossy tundra in grey; whilst the ice floes of the polar regions appear in white against the blue of the ocean colouring.

The limits of each of these different regions have been worked out with great labour and care, and thus the chart, as a whole, is believed to give a much more pleasing and instructive view of the general aspect of the globe, in some approach to its natural colouring, than any physical map hitherto published.

The landscape zones, besides being dependent on latitude, and on the shape of the continents, are compelled in their form both by the elevation of the land and the unequal distribution of warmth and moisture. To aid the explanation of the irregularities of shape introduced by the former cause, contour lines showing the level of 2500 and 5000 feet above the sea have been drawn with the greatest attainable accuracy; besides which, the observed elevations of upwards of 650 mountains, lakes, passes, and towns, have been set down upon the map; and, to illustrate the latter cause, the ocean currents, as main agents in the transference of heat and cold, have been delineated, the warmer and colder ocean streams being distinguished by different tints. Still further to assist the explanation of the main subject, four smaller diagrams, showing the distribution of temperature over land and sea, and of the direction of the winds in relation to barometric pressure, for each of the extreme seasons of the year—the months of January and July—have been appended to the chief map.

As of great interest in the physical geography of the globe, though subordinate to the chief object of the map, the depths of the ocean bed, so far as these have been ascertained by sounding, the great submarine banks, the distribution of coral reefs, the chief volcanic mountains, the points to which the great rivers are navigable, and the salt lakes of the continental drainage basins as distinguished from the fresh lakes which drain to the sea are subjects also illustrated by this chart.

NEW EDITION OF
JOHNSTON'S COMMERCIAL AND LIBRARY
CHART OF THE WORLD,
 ON MERCATOR'S PROJECTION, 1874.

This well-known and valuable Work, of which many thousand copies have been purchased by the principal mercantile establishments of Europe, India, and the Colonies, has, in accordance with the rapid progress of geographical science, been thoroughly revised and corrected up to the present year, 1874. It exhibits the most recent changes in political boundaries: in EUROPE, the new German Empire, the altered frontier of France, consequent on the results of the Franco-German War, the kingdom of Italy, &c. In ASIA, the encroachments of Russia on the Chinese territory in the basin of the Amur, with the new ports on the Pacific; the extension of British territory in India, and the new French Colony of Lower Cochinchina. In AFRICA, Speke, Grant, and Baker's discoveries of the sources of the Nile, and the explorations of Barth, Baikie, and Livingstone, in Central and Southern Africa. In AMERICA, the Colonies of British Columbia, Vancouver Island, and Stickeen, with all the new territories of the United States. In AUSTRALASIA, Queensland, discoveries in the interior of Australia, and the French Colony of New Caledonia.

Besides the information usually given in a Chart of the World, this Map contains the following:—

1. ENLARGED MAP OF EUROPE, showing in colours the countries comprised in the new German Empire, the Railways and Canals of Continental States, and the relative importance of the principal towns.

2. ENLARGED MAPS OF THE COLONIES of New South Wales and Victoria, the Cape Colony, Malta, &c.; the Railway across the Isthmus of Panama, the proposed interoceanic canal through Central America, with enlarged plans of the more important commercial ports in the world. A distinctive feature of the Chart is, that Britain and all her possessions are shown in one uniform red colour, which explains at once the vast extent of British territory, and facilitates the finding of remote dependencies.

3. LENGTH OF DAY. A scale extending from the Equator to the North Pole, showing the comparative duration of the longest day from sunrise to sunset, from 12 hours to 3 months.

4. TIME TABLE. Figures on the lower margin of the Map, showing the difference of time between that of the meridian of Greenwich and any place on the globe, to the east or west of it.

5. CURRENTS OF THE OCEAN. The limits of the currents, as far as known, are all defined by shading. Arrows indicate their direction, and their rate of motion in 24 hours is given in nautical miles.

6. FUCUS BANK. The Fucus Bank of Corvo and Flores (Sargasso or Grassy Sea), a mass of sea weed floating in the Atlantic Ocean, so thick as frequently to retard the progress of vessels, and so extensive as to cover a surface equal to 260,000 square miles.

7. STEAM-PACKET ROUTES. The tracks followed by steam-packets all over the world.

8. SOUNDINGS. The depth of the sea, and minimum depth of water on sandbanks, are given in fathoms. The position of the greatest depth ever sounded (nearly 5½ miles) is marked in the South Atlantic Ocean, between St. Helena and the coast of Brazil.

9. ICE. The limits of permanent and floating ice in summer and winter, showing the danger to navigation arising from ice-fields, especially in crossing the Atlantic Ocean.

10. NAVAL ENGAGEMENTS. The positions are marked by two cross guns, and a note gives the date of the action.

11. TELEGRAPHIC COMMUNICATIONS over the globe, printed in red.

SIZE—6 FEET BY 4 FEET 8 INCHES.

PRICE—Coloured and Varnished, on a Mahogany Roller, or in 4to Morocco Case for Drawing-room or Library, £3, 3s.

A NEW EDITION OF KEITH JOHNSTON'S
FOUR-SHEET MAP OF EUROPE
AND ADJACENT COUNTRIES,

Extending from Iceland on the North, to Cairo on the South; from Khiva on the East, to the Atlantic Ocean on the West. This Map contains the latest Territorial Divisions, and, amongst other details, shows all the Railways, including the most recently opened in Russia. The heights of the more important Mountains are given in English feet—distances from Port to Port in miles; the lines of Submarine Telegraphs and Fortified Towns are shown, and the dates and sites of Battles, etc., etc., indicated.

The Map measures 4 feet 4 inches by 3 feet 7 inches, and is clearly and carefully coloured.

A LIBRARY AND OFFICE
MAP OF THE BRITISH ISLES.

This large Map, on the scale of 14 miles to one inch, has been specially prepared for the Counting-house and Library, and will be found of the greatest service to all those who require to travel by rail, or who have to transmit goods from one part of the kingdom to another.

The extensive and intricate system of Railway Lines throughout the Empire has been laid down with great care; and to render it perfectly distinct and easily followed, the Railways are printed in bright red over the Map. The Counties in the three countries are clearly coloured; the Sea Tracks from the more important ports are given, as well as the Telegraphs from coast to coast.

A Section of England from the Menai Straits to the English Channel is also shown, as well as Maps of the Channel Islands, and the Island of Heligoland.

The Map possesses the great advantage over separate maps, in showing the three kingdoms on the same scale, and in their relative positions, a great advantage in a country where so much intercommunication exists.

FORMING A COMPLETE GENERAL

GAZETTEER OF THE WORLD.

By A. KEITH JOHNSTON, LL.D., F.R.S.E., F.G.S., etc.

Price, full bound, cloth, 36s.

Extract from Preface to the First Edition.

"This work is intended to supply what was generally felt to be a desideratum—a GEOGRAPHICAL DICTIONARY, embracing within a convenient space, and of easy reference, a much greater number of names than is usually found in similar books, even when extending to several volumes; arranged according to a uniform and methodical plan, and combining, with the utmost attainable accuracy, the most authentic information up to the present time. The Author was induced to engage in this arduous undertaking, from a persuasion that his previous studies would afford him facilities for its execution, such as few have enjoyed, and from his being possessed of an extensive and valuable collection of Books, Maps, and Notes, relating to every portion of the globe. He has endeavoured to render these materials available for the production of a Standard Book of General Geographical Reference, by compressing every article into the smallest space consistent with distinctness, by the adoption of a simple method of abbreviation, and by classing under one entry many places of the same name. Books of this kind are often chargeable with great inaccuracy in their statements of the positions and bearings of places. This may, in part, be accounted for by the difficulty of ascertaining the proper value of foreign measurements; but it is owing chiefly to such works being mere copies of previously existing and erroneous compilations. The only remedy for this serious defect was found to be a constant reference to the best maps. Accordingly, in this Work, for the first time it is believed, the plan has been systematically followed of determining by measurement the position, extent, and bearing of every place described. No previously existing dictionary has been followed either in method or matter; every article has been written expressly for this work from original materials, and it will be found to contain many valuable notices from recent geographical and statistical works not otherwise accessible to the English reader."

Extract from Preface to the Edition of 1874.

"The eighth edition of the Dictionary of Geography has been subjected to a thorough revision during three years of continuous application, and the whole work has been reprinted in a manner which it is believed will much facilitate easy reference, since each leading name now appears in a bolder type than the descriptive text which follows it."

"Though the work has lost the invaluable supervision of its author, the true geographical spirit in which he would have carried out the new edition has been earnestly kept in view; and no labour has been spared to procure from all quarters the best materials, in census tables and trustworthy information of all kinds, and to incorporate these in the Gazetteer. The tables of area and population throughout the Dictionary have been entirely recompiled, generally on the basis of the exhaustive statistics collected by Drs. Behm and Wagner of Gotha and published in the Gotha Almanac and the Geographical Year-Books. A new feature in the Gazetteer is the collection at the end of the volume of all the tables, scattered throughout its pages, into one comparative series of the greater and lesser geographical and political divisions of the whole globe."

The Times (leading article).

"The best and most authoritative English Gazetteer now extant."

OPINIONS.

Spectator.

"It is in fact a gazetteer of unparalleled fulness. It must contain at least 63,000 names [147,000], of which it tells us the province and country in which they are situated, and their latitude and longitude, besides the reference to the Royal Atlas. What is the value of the rest of the information in half the gazetteers?"

Reader.

"To a certain extent, this thick and closely-printed royal octavo volume of 676 pages, in double columns, forms a condensed gazetteer of all the principal places on the globe, giving, besides their latitude and longitude, the exact subdivision of the country preceding the name of the country itself. . . . The entire volume exhibits some 150,000 names, in strict alphabetical order, and, as far as we have tested the book, giving such information as we have instanced above with extreme accuracy, and including, as well as those of the principal places, many names of such as are insignificant, and particularly those of towns in the colonies, America, India, and the East, and of places mentioned by African travellers. . . . Indeed we cannot but express the great satisfaction the work has given us, from the very comprehensive plan of its execution, in every instance in which we have consulted its pages, and we therefore have no hesitation in recommending it as one of the most useful books of ready reference to the geographical student, or as a valuable handbook for either the library or counting-house. . . . By far the most complete list of the names of places in existence."

Belfast News-Letter.

"It has seldom fallen to our lot to direct public attention to a more valuable and practically useful work than the above. In a royal octavo volume of nearly seven hundred pages we have a strictly alphabetical index to every recorded locality on the globe. Closely printed in double columns, each page contains nearly two hundred names, giving the names of the countries in which every place is situated, its latitude and longitude, the map where it is to be found, and a column of special index letters which point out its exact situation. . . . It is an indispensable requisite in every merchant's office, as well as to every public institution."
